Public defence of theses and degree certificates in research studies

This guide is designed to support the public defence process of doctoral students at the Lund University Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts.

The Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts is responsible for the formal decisions, quality assurance and support in the process. For details, please see the Appendix.

Applying to publicly defend a doctoral research project

The public defence will take place during the Lund university semester. After having consulted with the potential external reviewer and the examination committee, the main supervisor will apply for the public defence of a doctoral research project, at least two months before the expected date of the event. Applications are to be submitted in writing to the faculty office. The application is to include the name and personal details of the candidate (doctoral student), the title of the project and the details concerning the supervisor, the date and the venue for the event, the external reviewer, the examining committee and the chair for the public defence. See further instructions under the heading 'External reviewer and examining committee' below.

The application is to be submitted to the faculty office for a decision by the board of the Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts. Kindly note when the faculty board will convene and submit the application well in advance, so it can be included in the documentation sent to the board members prior to the meeting. The form for the application is available on the faculty's website:

External reviewer and examining committee

- The external reviewer is to be a PhD holder or equivalent (senior lecturer of art or documented professional experience at the equivalent level). Always attach a CV to the application form. The external reviewer must not be active at the Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts, unless there are particular reasons to allow this.
- The public defence of the research project is to be led by a chair, who is often a representative for the institution, for example a professor.
- The examining committee is specially appointed for each public defence. The Higher Education Ordinance stipulates that at least one person not active at Lund University is to be included in the examining committee. Efforts should be made to ensure an external and impartial assessment.
- A person who has supervised the doctoral student cannot be part of the examining committee. The external reviewer and the supervisor have the right to attend the meeting of the examining committee and to take part in the deliberations, but not in the decision.
- The composition and competence of the examining committee can be regulated further in the respective course syllabi: General syllabi

Funds for documentation

When the doctoral defence has been decided by the faculty, the doctoral student may apply for funds for documentation (printing). The production of no less than 150 copies of the documentation of the doctoral work (termed “documented artistic research project” in the Higher Education Ordinance), including language editing, is to be financed through the faculty’s funds for documentation, maximum 40 000 SEK, regardless of media choice. Any excess costs are to be paid by the doctoral student.

The doctoral student sends the application for funds for documentation to the institution. The institution then requisites the funds for documentation, sending the application form to the faculty office. Invoices for printing, language editing etc are to be sent to the institution. Any excess funding may be kept by the institution. The application form for funds for documentation is on the faculty webpage:

Printed publications, ISBN and ISSN

If all or part of the doctoral research project consists of a book/publication it must be assigned a so-called ISBN number. The ISBN number is unique to each publication. The Institution is responsible for obtaining such a number. For information on how to obtain an ISBN number for a doctoral research project, visit:

<http://www.ub.lu.se/en/publish/registering-and-publishing-in-lup/doctoral-theses/isbn-for-a-doctoral-thesis>

The publication must include the Lund University logo. The logo can be downloaded here:

<http://www.staff.lu.se/support-and-tools/communication-and-graphic-profile/graphic-profile-and-logotype>

At the front of every copy of the book is to be inserted a notification sheet including the title of the thesis, the doctoral student’s name, the Lund University logo, time and place of the public defence, and the name of the external reviewer. Its back page, which is always in English, is called a document data sheet, on which the doctoral student will fill in more information about the research project in the pre-printed template and then sign. Please note that the size of the notification sheet must be adapted to the book format, in consultation with the printers.

Template for the notification sheet/document data sheet is available here:

<http://www.performingarts.lu.se/en/employee/documents-for-download/forms>

Use the existing text formats of the template. If necessary, the English text under the University logo on the notification sheet can be replaced with the following Swedish text:

”Doktorsarbete [alt. Akademisk avhandling] för avläggande av konstnärlig [alt. filosofie] doktorsexamen i [ämne] vid Konstnärliga fakulteten, Lunds universitet.
Framläggs för offentlig granskning den [datum, klockslag]
i [lokal, adress, ort].
Fakultetsopponent
[titel, namn, ev. högskola].”

Doctoral research projects at the Lund University Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts are published in two series: one for music education and one for research subjects in art. Every series has an ISSN number. The ISSN number of the music education series is 1404-6539, and of the art series 1653-8617. Every publication in a series has an individual number assigned by librarian Madeleine Bergquist, madeleine.bergquist@kham.lu.se

Electronic publication in LUP

The doctoral research project is to be published electronically in the database Lund University Publications (LUP). There are two types of electronic publications in LUP:

- (1) Compulsory electronic publication of an abstract in English (“notification”).

- (2) Electronic publication of the doctoral research project in full. The latter is not compulsory, but recommended by the Lund University Policy on Open Access Publication.

Compulsory publication of an abstract in English (“notification”, “spikning”)

The compulsory electronic registration entails publishing an abstract in English in LUP. The research project is to be published electronically no later than four weeks before the public defence, via <http://lup.lub.lu.se/>

The supervisor and/or subject director must approve the material before the notification.

The doctoral student is responsible for the notification. Logging into the system requires a working Lucat identity. Doctoral students who are not employed by Lund University can register as users here: <https://lup.lub.lu.se/luur>. If the doctoral student needs help with registration in LUP, they can contact the librarians Madeleine Bergquist, madeleine.bergquist@khem.lu.se, telephone 040 325722 or 040 325569, or Åse Lugner, ase.lugner@mhmlu.se, telephone 040 325463. Please check that the information on the time and place for the public defence of the research project, its title and other details is correct and complete before publication. If the research project was written in Swedish or other language than English, please note that the title is to be entered as it appears on the project, and not translated into English.

Electronic publication of the doctoral research project

According to the Lund University Policy on Open Access Publication, it is beneficial to publish research publications in full. The doctoral research project is to be published in its entirety in LUP four weeks before its public defence, unless there are particular reasons which prevent this, such as production or copyright issues. It is also possible to upload attachments in the form of sound files, films, images, etc. in LUP.

If not all parts of the project can be published at the publication date, for various reasons, it must be completed no later than a month after its public defence. The dean can approve deferment in special circumstances.

Instructions for LUP

Manuals with instructions on how to publish in LUP:

Manual - registering your dissertation in LUP \(English\)

The form is designed for written theses – fill in the categories applicable in each case. Here are a few additions to the guide.

Under WORK:

- Dissertation type: Selecting an alternative is not compulsory.
- Subject: Select ‘Performing arts’.

Under CONTEXT:

- Department/Affiliation: Select ‘Malmö Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts’, or a relevant subdivision. Follow the instructions of the manual to add, modify or supplement a department/affiliation.

Under FILES AND ACCESS:

- Upload main document: “Document” can be a PDF text, an audio file, a video, or other media.
- Related material: Notice that you are free to link to many different types of related material.

Under MESSAGE:

Here you can leave a message to the reviewer of your material (LUP manager Madeleine Bergqvist). Provide your phone number or email address so that the reviewer can contact you. (The message is only visible to the reviewer.)

Informal notification (“spikning”)

The traditional notification (“spikning” with hammer and nail in the University building) has been replaced at Lund university by the electronic abstract publication in LUP (see above). An optional, informal traditional “spikning” may take place at the institution if the doctoral student and the institution wish to do so.

Distribution of the doctoral research project

The documentation of the doctoral work is to be printed or copied in no less than 150 copies. The production, including language editing, is financed through the faculty funds for documentation, maximum 40 000 SEK. For instructions regarding application for this grant, please see the section Funds for documentation above.

If the doctoral research project includes text with ISBN numbers, legal deposits and an additional number of copies deemed reasonable by the institution shall be printed.

If the doctoral research project consists of other types of media/text material, the Institution and the Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts at Lund University must obtain an assessment by the National Library of Sweden of how the project should preferably be published/made available.

For parts of the doctoral research project that consist of text, see option A below. For parts of the project that consist of other production formats, see option B.

A. Doctoral research projects or parts of such projects consisting of text

The doctoral student is to distribute a certain number of copies of the research project according to the list below, no later than four weeks before the public defence.

- The doctoral student is responsible for ensuring that the external reviewer and the members of the examining committee each receive the thesis/research project at the latest four weeks before the date of its public defence. The doctoral thesis is to be submitted in its existing form, if the printed work is not yet available, four weeks before the public defence.
- 20 copies of the thesis text with an ISBN number – the so-called legal deposits – are to be submitted to Lund University Library. The following link provides information about legal deposits: <http://www.kb.se/english/services/deposits..> The original receipt for delivered legal deposits shall be submitted to the Institution’s administration and a copy of the receipt shall be submitted to the office of the Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts.
- Each copy of the thesis shall contain a notification sheet. Please see the above section Printed publications, ISBN and ISSN.
- The institution and doctoral student can come to an agreement on any additional distribution.
- The doctoral student is responsible for providing no less than 20 copies to be available at the public defence.
- The institution is responsible for ensuring that a digital version of the research project (for example a link to LUP) is disseminated according to the institution’s own mailing list, and for ensuring that the project is accessible via relevant web pages. A link to the research project shall be emailed to the Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts at Lund University for publication on the faculty website.
- The institution’s remaining copies are to be kept for at least five years. If the institution subsequently wishes to dispose of the remaining copies, they are first to be offered to the graduate.

B. Doctoral research projects or parts of such projects consisting of other production formats

The doctoral student is to distribute a certain number of copies of the research project according to the list below, no later than four weeks before the public defence.

- The doctoral student is responsible for ensuring that the external reviewer and the members of the examining committee each receive the thesis/research project at the latest four weeks before the date of its public defence. The doctoral thesis is to be submitted in its existing form, if the printed work is not yet available, four weeks before the public defence.

- If no parts of the research project, apart from the abstract, are available four weeks before the public defence, special agreements on how to proceed must be made with the external reviewer in very good time.
- The institution and doctoral student can come to an agreement on any additional distribution.
- The institution is responsible for ensuring that a digital version of the research project (for example a link to LUP) is disseminated according to the institution's own mailing list, and for ensuring that the project is accessible via relevant web pages. A link to the research project shall be emailed to Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts at Lund University for publication on the faculty website.
- The institution's remaining copies are to be kept for at least five years. If the institution subsequently wishes to dispose of the remaining copies, they are first to be offered to the graduate.

Public defence

The institution's administrative office together with the supervisors are responsible for making sure that invitations to the public defence are disseminated via appropriate channels.

A traditional form of public defence can briefly be described as follows (although different arrangements can occur):

1. The chair opens the public defence and presents the doctoral student, the external reviewer and the examining committee and explains how the public defence will proceed.
2. The external reviewer makes a summarising presentation of the content of the project and the doctoral student comments on the summary and accounts for any errata. A discussion led by the external reviewer follows. If the doctoral project contains artistic expression of any kind, the doctoral student can start by presenting his or her work as a whole, after which the external reviewer makes a summary followed by a discussion led by the external reviewer.
3. The members of the examining committee address their questions to the doctoral student.
4. The audience is given an opportunity to ask questions.
5. The examining committee meets in private to determine whether or not the research project is to be awarded a passing grade. The committee's decision is recorded in a report. A template for the report is available on the website of the Faculty of Fine and Performing Arts: Examining committee report

Detailed descriptions of what the public defence structure might look like for doctoral research projects in fine and performing art as well as in music education are available in English on the faculty website. Agenda for dissertation in Music Education or Agenda for dissertation in Artistic Research We encourage you to send this description to the external reviewer and examination committee so that they can prepare for the process.

In accordance with the Higher Education Ordinance and Lund University's regulations on third cycle studies, the following rules apply:

- The examination committee is quorate only when all members are present. Decisions are to be made by majority rule. A single member has the right to have their dissenting opinion noted (under Section 19 of the Administrative Procedure Act).
- The external examiner and the supervisor have the right to be present at the meetings of the examining committee and participate in discussions, but not in decisions.
- The doctoral thesis will be assessed and given either a 'Pass' or 'Fail' grade. The contents of the thesis and the public defence of it shall be taken into account when grading. If the thesis is awarded a 'Fail' grade, this must be justified in writing.

Degree certificate

In order for doctoral students to receive their doctoral degree certificate, it will require first that all courses listed in the general syllabus have been completed, and that all documentation of the doctoral research project has been made available in the manner prescribed by Lund University, the National Library of Sweden, and the legal deposits act. The main supervisor is to certify whether these conditions are met. The certificate is to be sent to the faculty's research studies officer.

Second, it will require that the result of the public defence, in the form of the examination committee report, has been submitted to the faculty's research studies officer. Following the public defence, the chair of the defence is to send the original examining committee report to the research studies officer at the faculty, who will enter the result in Ladok, and send a copy of the minutes to the Institution's administration.

In addition, the doctoral student must submit an application to the Degree Office at Lund University. Information on the application procedure and the relevant form are available on the website of the Degree Office: <http://www.lunduniversity.lu.se/current-students/academic-matters-support/apply-for-your-degree-certificate>

Please note that all course results, the title of the doctoral research project and the outcome of its public defence are to be recorded in Ladok before the application for the degree certificate can be processed. The supervisor and/or subject director is responsible for ensuring that documentation on completed courses is submitted to the Ladok officer and for certifying that the courses meet the requirements of the general syllabus. It can take some time to process the application for a degree certificate; 8–10 weeks is not unusual.

Doctoral degree conferment ceremony

The faculty office submits information on successfully defended doctoral theses to the degree conferment ceremony office, which handles all matters concerning the doctoral degree conferment ceremony. The doctoral graduand is invited to the doctoral degree conferment ceremony by the Head of Ceremonies and Events at the University. The degree conferment ceremony office can be contacted via promotionsexp@rektor.lu.se.

During the doctoral degree conferment ceremony, the graduand is to have access to a doctor's ceremonial hat and ring. Graduands wishing to purchase the hat and ring are to order these items well in advance from the suppliers approved by the Head of Ceremonies and Events. If the graduand does not wish to purchase the hat and ring, they will need to look into possibilities of borrowing such items through personal contacts. Read more about the doctoral degree conferment ceremony on the LU website: <http://www.lunduniversity.lu.se/admissions/phd-studies/doctoral-conferment-ceremony>
